British Ceramics Biennial

British Ceramics Biennial presents the best of the UK's contemporary ceramics. New work will grace the spectacular China Hall at the original Spode factory site in Stoke, as well as major exhibitions at The Potteries Museum & Art Gallery and AirSpace Gallery, plus a series of special events across the city from 28 September – 10 November including the Burslem Weekend.

Pits and Pots Family
Workshop & Sculpture

Come along and help create a giant Pits and Pots sculpture at the historic Middleport Pottery site. Inspired by the history of Stoke-on-Trent, you'll join other artists, families and volunteers to capture stories in clay growing over the two days.

The Pits and Pots sculpture is part of Clay Cargo: London to Stoke 2013, one of a series of canal-side workshops linking Stoke-on-Trent, Birmingham and London.

Expect outdoor bottle-kiln firing, a canal boat appearance, getting messy with clay and getting your work exhibited at the British Ceramics Biennial (britishceramicsbiennial.com).

Please wear warm clothes and sensible shoes. No need to book. Free. Open to families, adults, artists and groups.

Supported by:

Workshop delivered by:
Clayground Collective
(claygroundcollective.org).

Kiln construction by:
artist Martin Brockman.

Boat appearance:
Etruria Boat Group,
Friends of Etruria Museum.

12 & 13 October,
11.00am–4.00pm

at: Middleport Pottery
(Home of Burleigh),
Port Street, Middleport

2,000 Kilns Craft Project
Did you know there used to be thousands of bottle kilns in Stoke-on-Trent. In the 1950s, within living memory, there were around 2,000 kilns in existence. Come along to Middleport Pottery and help us make 2,000 mini kilns to display at the opening of Middleport Pottery in Spring 2014. Visitors can explore the outside areas of the factory to see the progress of the construction work to regenerate the factory.
Free event.
